INTRODUCTION

Prior to 1852 no provision was made in the region which is now Wisconsin for the recording of births as such by governmental agencies. However, births occurring among communicants of certain religious faiths were, and still are, required by church regulations to be recorded in parish registers. Thus, even as early as Wisconsin's pre-Territorial days, or prior to 1836, records of birth were made when baptisms were administered. The larger number of records, however, date from a more recent time. These include not only baptismal records but records of marriages and of deaths. A law enacted in 1899 required the person officiating at a marriage ceremony to return the marriage license with the marriage certificate to the register of deeds,[1] but since 1909 the person performing the marriage has been required to retain the license as evidence of his authority to solemnize the marriage.[2]

Many denominations require by church rule or law the keeping of vital statistics records. Churches of denominations which do not make such requirements nevertheless have been quite faithful in the keeping of records.

Baptist Church

No rule requires the keeping of vital statistics records. However, a Cradle Roll is kept of all children born to parents who are members of the church, and baptismal records of adults uniting with the church.[3]

Church of the Nazarene

While no rule requires the keeping of vital statistics records, practically every parish has kept complete records.[4]

Congregational-Christian Churches

No rule requires the keeping of vital statistics records. However, records of baptisms are kept by the local church, while those of marriages and deaths are retained by the minister.[5]

Evangelical Church

There is no requirement in church laws relating to the keeping of vital statistics records. However, the denomination's publishing house issues a regulation "Church Record Book" providing space for the recording of baptisms, births, and the names of the parents. Also, each minister is required to keep a record of membership, deaths, and withdrawals.[6]

Latter Day Saints

While no rule requires the keeping of vital statistics records, the secretary of each church does keep very complete records.[7]

Lutherans

American Lutheran Church. No rule requires the keeping of vital statistics records. However, each church customarily keeps a very complete register of all births, marriages, and deaths.[8]

Introduction

Evangelical Lutheran Augustana Synod of North America (Illinois Conference). A constitutional law declares: "He [the minister] shall keep and preserve accurate records, such as church records, records of baptisms, confirmations, marriages, and deaths."[9]

Evangelical Lutheran Joint Synod of Wisconsin and Other States. A rule reads: "The officiating pastor at the occasion of every baptism must make prompt and exact statistical notations in the official church register. This is to be observed as an iron-clad rule."[10]

Norwegian Lutheran Church of America (Eastern District). No rule requires the keeping of vital statistics records. However, a very complete record is kept of all births, marriages, and deaths.[11]

United Lutheran Church in America (Synod of the Northwest). The keeping of vital statistics records may be constitutionally required by a local church. "He [the minister] shall keep a record of all . . . baptisms, confirmations, marriages funerals. . . ."[12]

Methodist Church

"The pastor shall keep and transmit to his successor an accurate register of the names of baptized children within his Pastoral Charge, giving the dates of their birth and baptism, the names of their parents, and their place of residence. Should they remove, he shall issue to them Certificates of Registration."[13]

Moravian Church in America

"The Pastor of every Congregation sh 'l, in separate books procured for that purpose, carefully keep the following records, which records shall in every case be kept according to the rules laid down by the Provincial Synod: a. The Register shall contain a reliable record of all Baptisms, Confirmations, Receptions of Communicants, Marriages, Funerals, Removals and Dismissals, and Ordinations. The entries of the Register must be made according to the printed instructions furnished with the same."[14]

Nondenominational Churches

A nondenominational church may have its own rule relative to the keeping of vital statistics records, or simply keep them without a rule.[15]

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America

"Every church session shall keep registers or rolls of persons . . . and of deaths. . . . The church session shall also keep a fair register of marriages, and of baptisms, with the times of the births of the individuals baptized."[16]

Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America

"It shall be the duty of every Minister of this Church to record in the Parish Register all Baptisms, Confirmations, Marriages, Burials, and the names of all Communicants within his Cure."[17]

Introduction

Roman Catholic Church

"The pastor must keep the parochial records of baptism, confirmation, marriage, and the deceased. He shall take care to have the census book as correct as possible, and shall keep these books with great care and according to the approved custom of the Church or the regulation of the bishop."[18]

". . . In Canon Law the pastor's records of baptism, marri deaths are recognized as public records and as full proof of affirmed in such records."[19]
